THE CITY CAMPAIGN THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE RACE

(Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of sketches of sketches of candidates seeking office in the city election Tuesday. Today's article includes candidates for the School Committee. Candidates for councilor-at-large and ward councilor will be discussed in coming installments. Candidates are listed in the order they appear on the ballot.)

George F. Fallon Jr.

George F. Fallon Jr. of 67 Safford Street, Wollaston, is making his second bid for the School Committee. Two years ago he was top runnerup, and in the recent preliminary election he was third from the top.

Mr. Fallon was born in Cambridge but came to Quincy when he was less than a year old and has lived here since. He is a Navy veteran of World War II and served five years as an intelligence agent with the CIA during the Korean conflict. He is married and has two children, a son in Montclair School and a daughter in North Quincy High School.

Lists School Program

Mr. Fallon is a graduate of North Quincy High and Boston University, and did four years of graduate work at George Washington University. In North Quincy High he was manager of the football team for three years. He heads his own insurance company in Quincy and Boston.

Mr. Fallon has been campaigning with a definite program for the Quincy public schools. One of his chief points is keeping the mental health facilities in Quincy.

He advocates school lunch programs for elementary schools with the idea of these facilities also serving as CD centers in time of a national emergency.

A third plank in his platform calls for an incentive program in high schools, with students getting a closer look at government in action. He also thinks that South and West Quincy need new schools, saying that these sections were slighted in the big post-war building program.
